Annual Meeting W.I. Will Be Held Next Thursday

The Wetaskiwin Women's Institute held a pleasant meeting at the home of Mrs. A. H. Liversidge on Thursday last. A good number of members and visitors were present to hear Mr. Gish, Principal of the High School, who gave an interesting talk on Canadian Industries, particularly those of Alberta, showing the relation of Alberta to the other provinces in this respect and also showing some of the future possibilities of our products. This is the first opportunity the Institute has had of hearing Mr. Gish and his audience was both attentive and appreciative. Mrs. P. L. Greiner was present and told of her trip to the Century of Progress Exhibition held in Chicago and of some of the interesting things seen there. The program was under the supervision of Mrs. J. A. Rodell, convener of Canadian Industries and at her invitation, several musical selections were given, the little Misses Oswald playing a violin and piano, Miss Pearl Collett a vocal number and Miss Madeline East, a piano solo.

A raffle will be held just before Christmas, when a Premium ham, a turkey and a Christmas cake will be raffled, and fifty per cent of the proceeds will be given to the Welfare League.

The annual meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. J. A. Rodell on Thursday, December 14th, at three o'clock, when reports will be heard from the standing committees and the election of officers will take place.

NELS LINDEN
Who has again won a distinct honor by winning the World's Grand Championship on Troll Barley at the International Grain Show held at Chicago. Mr. Linden has always been a strong contender at the International Show, and won many prizes. As far as can be ascertained this is the first time that the Grand Championship for barley was awarded to a Canadian.

Weddings

FORTH-FELDBERG
On Wednesday, November 29th, a quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, when Walter August Forth and Emma Elizabeth Feldberg were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. H. G. H. Klingbeil officiating. Encouraging words were spoken on Proverbs 18:22, "Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing, and obtaineth favor of the Lord."

A sumptuous wedding supper was served at the home of Mr. Feldberg. The happy couple will make their home near the farm of the groom's father. We join in wishing them a long and contented life.

NO ELECTION TO BE HELD IN WETASKIWIN THIS YEAR

At the nominations on Monday, Thomas Torsen was re-elected as Mayor for 1934. The Aldermen whose terms automatically expire this year, namely, Herbert Brown, James Scott and J. I. Poole, were also re-elected. For the Public School Board, Eli Moore and Dr. J. C. Shillabeer were elected by acclamation, and for the Sacred Heart Separate School Board, James Cairne and P. L. Greiner were elected without opposition.

G. L. Gethard was nominated for both Alderman and Public School Board, but later withdrew his nominations, thereby saving the City the expense of an election.

MINISTER'S FAMILY HONORED

On Wednesday evening, at the close of the prayer meeting, a delightful surprise had been arranged by a number of the friends to honor Rev. and Mrs. Meyer and Esther, it being Rev. Meyer's tenth year anniversary in the Baptist pastorate in Wetaskiwin, where he has served so faithfully and capably. Kind words were spoken by Rev. Larson and Wingblad, and Mrs. Larson and Mr. Short. A sum of money was presented to Rev. Meyer by Mrs. G. Carlson and a bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. Meyer by the Ladies' Aid. Miss Meyer received a beautiful set of silver candle holders for her efficient services in the Sunday school for the past ten years. The happy event was brought to a close by a tasty lunch which was served by the ladies.

THEY ARE READY

The merchants of Wetaskiwin have gone to considerable trouble in decorating their stores and windows for the Big Community Sale, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. They're all ready for the big event, and the buying public will receive the heartiest welcome in any business place in Wetaskiwin this week, as well as at all times in the future.

Let's Put It Where It Belongs!

U. F. A. NOTES

Sometimes a ship is beset by fog and mist and no observations can be taken to determine its position. The ship's navigator then sets the course for the ensuing twenty-four hours based on observations taken on previous days. This practice is followed with almost uniformly successful results.

Sometimes the ordinary citizen is beset by such a cloud of propaganda and insinuations that a similar practice is necessary in determining his course and position with regard to certain individuals and events. Although doubts have been cast upon the honour and integrity of Premier Brownlee, the U.F.A. Convention held in Wetaskiwin recently continued in its course of confidence in Premier Brownlee, having faith in the accuracy of his observations of his character and actions in previous years. Premier Brownlee has established an irreproachable record of devotion to the welfare of the people of Alberta, he has repeatedly turned down opportunities to better himself materially, and, to quote the "High River Times", "It is not too much to say that all citizens of Alberta have been proud to acknowledge him as the provincial representative in any of the large conferences where national and international leaders have met."

There are a few facts which anyone would do well to ponder before accepting as justified the repeated accusations that the U.F.A. Government is extravagant.

One is the fact that the bond issues placed on the market this year by the four western provinces, Alberta has been able to sell its bonds at a lower cost than any other of the western provinces. One of the most important factors influencing the price of the bonds of any organization is the management of that organization. Where the management is good the bonds will sell at a premium over others.

Something else to ponder is the following:

New services not in existence in 1921, all of which have been cut to the minimum, will require over one million dollars. These include:

Old Age Pensions	$200,000
Super-Annuation Act	$135,000
University Hospital	$60,000
Debt Adjustment Act	$65,000
and many other smaller items.

In spite of these new services the government is spending over $200,000 less on all public services, exclusive of debt charges, than was spent in 1921. Estimated expenditures on public services in 1921 were $8,195,000. This reduction of $200,000 has been effected by efficiency and economy of administration.

Opponents of the U.F.A. government must represent the total increase of public debt since 1921 as $83,000,000, when in fact the increase is only $56,600,000. These opponents arrive at their figures by disregarding certain portions of the debt of 1921.

The increase of $56,600,000 is made up of 24 millions for highways of which 2,000 miles are now gravelled, 73 millions for public buildings, the Wheat Pool loan of 51 millions on which the Pool is meeting every cent of interest, 5 millions for the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation Project, which can pay its way only with high prices for farm products and which by the way was organized by the old Liberal government.

Some extensions to the telephone system account for $5,306,000 of the increase. In this connection it must be remembered that our telephone troubles are confined to the rural telephones, 85% of which were built by the Liberal government previous to the present U.F.A. government. The remainder of the increase of public debt is made up of unemployment relief, income deficits and miscellaneous loans and advances. This statement of the increase of public debt is made that the public may see that there is something tangible to show for the money expended and that the public may see that the money has not been squandered.

In the discussions on or about Armistice Day, one could not help remarking upon the number of times Depression was listed among the horrible products of war. Even people who should know better fell into this error. Students of the "New Economics" recognize both war and depression as a product of the present financial system. A system which denies workers sufficient purchasing power to buy the whole product of industry, forcing nations to attempt to sell more in foreign markets than they buy and thus setting up intense rivalry for possession of foreign markets. That is what, stripped of all its bally-hoo and propaganda, the last war was about. President Wilson in spite of all his idealism recognized it as such and called it "war of commercial rivalry".

The war failed to provide any increase of foreign markets and in the circumstance the only alternative to war is depression. To avoid both war and depression it is necessary to institute a financial system which enables the workers to buy the whole product of industry and enable the nations to trade on a basis of exchange of equal values. The financial system which will enable this to be done is known as Social Credit.

It is a fallacy to say that depression is a product of war. They are both the product of an iniquitous financial system.

CANADA GRAIN BANNERS ATOP NORTH AMERICA

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Canada's grain banners were atop the agricultural flagstaff of the continent today.

Signalling the maintenance of the dominion's supremacy in wheat growing, Frank Isaacson of Eldora, Sask., Monday was crowned wheat king of the International Hay and Grain Show here. And last night Ian Smith, of Wolf Creek, Alta., a son of a former wheat king, captured the international oats championship.

The four western Canadian provinces and Ontario carried off a major share of the cereal grain awards judged at the show Monday. Farmer for 27 years and the father of five children, Ian Smith, of five children, had been awarded the wheat crown with a Reward strain of hard red spring wheat, the youthful Alberta farmer romped home with the oats title.

Ian Smith is the son of Joseph H. B. Smith, who in 1929 gave to Alberta its fourth wheat crown which was built to seven by the three consecutive wins of Herman Trele of Wembley Alta., in 1930, 1931 and 1932.

CORRECTION

In the Booster Issue last week, a couple of errors appeared in Sawfay Stores advertisement. Chocolate bars should have been 10 for 15c, and Raisins, 2 lbs. for 33c.

HIS WORSHIP, MAYOR TORSSEN who was re-elected by acclamation on Monday last, for the ensuing year.

Town Topics

Only fourteen more shopping days till Christmas.

The W.A. of Immanuel Church will meet at the home of Mrs. R. W. Manley on Tuesday, December 12th, at 4 p.m.

Mrs. Condie and Mrs. Atkinson went to Calgary on Wednesday, where they will attend the concert given by the Symphony Orchestra.

The Male Voice Choir from Wood River, with assistants, put on an excellent concert at the United Church Monday evening and were well received.

J. T. Rae, who has been spending the summer here looking after his farm operations, left Tuesday morning for Florida, where he will spend the winter.

Mrs. Cosgrove of Calgary, spent the week-end here, visiting her daughter, Mrs. M. R. Belsheim. She also visited friends at Hawf before returning home.

Dr. Frank Rosher was in Edmonton for a couple of days attending a surgical clinic at the University Hospital, also attending the annual Academy of Medicine banquet.

The annual meeting of the Swedish Lutheran Ladies' Aid will be held in the church parlor on Wednesday, Dec. 13th, at 2:30 p.m. All members are expected to attend and visitors are welcome.

The poultry dealers are very busy this week, purchasing and shipping turkeys as well as other fowl. This is another proof that Wetaskiwin is one of the best poultry districts in Western Canada.

A few days ago H. R. French received a consignment of three pairs of foxes which arrived from Saskatoon. They are exceptionally fine animals and will improve the stock of his ranch.

The Norwegian Lutheran Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of O. H. Ronnie on Friday afternoon, December 8th. As this is the annual meeting, all members are requested to attend. Mrs. Lykken and Mrs. Olson will serve.

V. E. Thompson attended the convention of the Alberta Municipalities at Edmonton last week, in the dual capacity of Reeve from the Municipal District of Montgomery, as well as the representative from the Alberta School Trustees' Association. He extended greeting of the Trustees' Association to the convention.

Letters received by Rev. Appel from Australia this week report that in the States of South Australia and parts of New South Wales, the wheat crop is poor. Harvesting has by this time begun and so the crops would not be affected to any extent by rainfall since the report was written four weeks ago. In Queensland the crops are excellent, and, while the depression is still felt, the policy of the Australian government has given the people confidence and conditions have already improved greatly. That is not the case in one locality or even one State is proven by the fact that the letters received report conditions in three States.

Lone Ridge U.F. A. Holds Annual Business Session

The annual business meeting of the above local was held in the Lone Ridge hall on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5th, the president, Mr. W. Stevens, occupying the chair. Report of the delegates to the convention was given, followed by a general discussion of matters interesting to the members.

The gathering were pleased to have present one of the founders of the Lone Ridge Local, Mr. Ole Olson, who had just arrived from Grande Prairie. Mr. Olson, in a brief speech, thanked the members for the welcome extended, and congratulated the local on its good showing as evidenced by the number present.

Following the business session, the President called for nominations for the various officers in 1934. The President, W. Stevens, and vice-president, Wm. Hillson, were re-elected by acclamation. The secretary-treasurer, Mr. T. S. Steedman, tendered his resignation on account of his increasing duties as Municipal Secretary leaving him no time for other activities. The resignation was accepted with regret and Mr. Steedman was thanked for his services during the past four years. B. S. Wallis was appointed secretary-treasurer for the next year. Mr. Steedman accepting office as auditor.

It was decided to hold meetings in various homes of members during winter months. The next meeting being arranged: January meeting at Brightview Store; February meeting at Mr. Knapstein's; March meeting at Mr. T. Steedman's.

The meeting closed with a series of short addresses by various members present.

The meeting to be addressed by Wheat Pool officials, Messrs. L. H. Hutchinson, W. J. Grafton and T. T. Jovne was unavoidably postponed, and will be held in Lone Ridge hall on Dec. 12th, at 8 p.m. when it is hoped a large attendance will be on hand to listen to these gentlemen.

GOLDEN WEDDING AT CROOKED LAKE

A few days ago a party of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Blackstad to commemorate the advent of their golden wedding. The afternoon was pleasantly spent, with Rev. Meyer giving a speech and singing and playing some old favorite songs. The happy couple were presented with a useful and decorative gift as a souvenir of the day and after a few grateful words of thanks from the bride and groom the ladies proceeded to serve a dainty lunch, topped off by a huge wedding cake. Mr. and Mrs. Blackstad are old timers in the district, having arrived here in 1906 from Thief River Falls, Minn., to their present home. We all join in wishing them many more years of active life.

LADIES' CURLING CLUB

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 29th, the Ladies' Curling Club held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Chiddy, to make their plans for the coming season.

Committees were appointed and reports received indicate that there will be a good membership this season, with at least six rinks organized. After the business was concluded dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The officers for the year are: President, Mrs. E. Merner; Vice-President, Mrs. Chiddy; Secretary, Mrs. L. G. Kelley; Treasurer, Miss Florence Reck-nagle.

CROOKED LAKE U.F.A.

The monthly meeting of the Crooked Lake U.F.A. will be held on Thursday evening, December 9th, at the home of Clarence Maynard. All members are urged to attend, as this is the annual meeting.

WEEKLY STOCK MARKET REPORT

Following is a report of the Edmonton Stock Yards for the week ending Dec. 5th:

Receipts: Cattle, 954; Calves, 209; Hogs, 1716; Sheep, 311.

So far this week there have been insufficient arrivals of good cattle to really make a market. Trading is fairly active on good quality kinds which are selling at steady to firm values. Common and in between kinds, however, are slow movers and hard to sell at values which are holding barely steady and in spots showing a weaker tone. The following are the ruling prices:

Good butcher steers $3.00 to $3.50, medium $2.25 to $2.75, common to fair from $1.25 to $2.00, good to choice butcher heifers $2.50 to $3.00. There is only fair action on the stocker market with very few of the desirable kinds arriving. Good kinds selling generally at $1.75 to $2.25.

Calves remaining fully steady and unchanged. Good to choice $3.50 to $4.00, fair to medium $2.00 to $3.00.

Hog market tending lower. Today, Tuesday, a small car of fed and watered hogs sold at $4.80, trucked in at $4.75 for the hogs. Selects at a premium of 50c per cwt. and butchers 50c per cwt.

There is a good demand for good quality handweight lambs. Very few of this kind arriving. Good selling at $4.50 to $5.00, choice quoted up to $5.50, fair to medium $3.00 to $4.00, yearlings $2.00 to $3.00, and ewes 75c to $2.00.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 1775, on Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the year 1934:

Wor. Master—F. L. Thorn, re-elected.

Dep. Master—S. Griffiths, re-elected.

Chap.—Geo. Grigsby.

Rec. Sec.—R. R. Burland, re-elected.

Fin. Sec.—R. R. Burland, re-elected.

THE AFFAIR
of THE TICKETS

Page shook his head regretfully, as he pushed aside the account book he had been studying.

"No, it simply can't be done," he announced with decision. "We've been going it a little too strong as it is. You see, our winter outfit figured up now, than we expected; then that little dinner set us back quite a bit. There would be no sense getting in deeper for so trivial a thing as this."

Allen sat on the other side of the table, her elbows on its smooth surface, her dimpled chin in her hands, and watched her niece, her husband. When he delivered his ultimatum, her heart sank with a sickening thud down to her high-heeled satin slippers, but this curious fact was not registered in her brilliant face nor in her adoring blue eyes. Page looked across at her with a shade of anxiety, but she met his glance bravely and actually produced a smile from somewhere.

"Oh, well," she answered lightly, "we'll go to a good movie that night instead, and forget all about it."

She jumped up as she spoke and ran around to where he sat drumming on the table with a pencil. She had doubts about the lasting quality of the smile she had conjured for his consolation, and she felt safer perched on his chair with her cheek against his crisp, dark, curly hair. He could not look at her there with his keen, lawyer gaze, and with a little judicious petting she might change the subject.

But even while she ruffled Page's hair with her slim fingers, she was conscious of a feeling of rebellion against his beloved budget system. Oh, of course, it was sensible, and the right thing to do and all that, and really she had done her best with it, but sometimes—like the present for instance—she almost hated its iron fixity.

Some three months before, when Page and Allen had returned from their brief honeymoon trip, and settled down in their tiny apartment, like a wise, young man of modern times, the first thing Page did was to take stock, as it were. The next thing was to make out a budget system—so much for running the apartment, so much for clothes, so much for pleasure, and so much for a rainy day. And he made a law to be as adamant as any of the Medes and Persians, that one "so much" must not under any condition borrow from another "so much."

Just at first running the apartment was a problem, but Allen being a determined little soul, soon mastered that. It was the pleasures that caused the trouble. Allen was young and pleasure-loving by nature; she enjoyed going to the theatre and operas and even to the movies, and of course Page wished to humor her.

The first month did not matter so much; the second was rather worse, but the third brought the storm. On a certain night of the month a famous continental singer was to appear in America for the first time in Allen's favorite opera. She had never wanted to go anywhere so much in her life; and the more she thought about it, the more she wanted to go. And now Page in his firm gray had announced that it could not be done.

In the days that followed Allen tried hard to hide her disappointment and succeeded so well that Page, who was absorbed in a difficult murder case, soon forgot all about it. Then one morning, the very day of the opera, when Allen looked through the mail she found a letter addressed to herself with a typewriter. With some curiosity she tore it open and there, of wonder of wonders, were two opera tickets! She overturned her chair and very nearly did the same to her cup of coffee in her eagerness to show them to Page.

She was rosy and palpitating with delight, as she held them out for his inspection.

"Oh, Page, now we can go, now we can go!" she chanted, dancing around him like a sprite, the tickets held high in her hand. "I've always been wild to hear that woman sing—and now we can. Isn't it just too lovely?"

But somehow Page failed to enthuse. His legal mind was groping back behind the tickets for an explanation.

"Have you any idea who sent them?" he demanded, in what Allen called his lawyer voice.

She came to a sudden standstill behind his chair and began to ruffle his hair.

"Why, no!" she said, but her color deepened as she spoke.

"Perhaps it was Aunt Constance." Page pulled her around in front of him and sat her in his lap. She was such a little thing, just the size to cuddle up satisfactorily.

"Now, Allen, don't you know your Aunt Constance wouldn't have done this sort of thing?" he probed inexorably. "You know she would have presented them with a blare of trumpets and never let you or any one forget it for a moment afterwards."

Allen laughed appreciatively and nodded her golden head.

"That's Aunt Constance to the letter," she agreed. Perhaps Bertha sent them.

"But I thought Bertha went to Washington."

"Oh, so she did! I had forgotten for the moment. But, Page, haven't you any friends who might have sent them?" she inquired hopefully.

"Certainly not! Why should they?" He snapped out the words in a positive bit-off way. Allen tossed her head with a little pout.

"Then I don't know who sent them, I'm sure," she murmured, with affected indifference.

Page put a finger under her dimpled chin and tilted her face so he could look straight into her eyes.

"Haven't you thought of anyone it might be?"

She flushed up to the roots of her hair, lowered her eyes and did not answer.

"Didn't Bob Stafford remember your birthday and send you some roses?" continue their inquisitor.

"There wasn't any card," she objected quickly.

"No, but Bertha knew and told you."

Allen got up petulantly.

"Oh, well, we don't know who sent the tickets; so we may as well go and enjoy ourselves," she exclaimed.

Page was due at the office, and had to go.

"No!" he said with decision, as he rose to his feet. "We won't use those tickets. We will throw them in the waste-basket and stay at home. I guess we can live through it."

He was occupied in putting on his overcoat and getting his hat so he failed to see Allen's expression.

"You don't really mean that; do you, Page?" she inquired a little breathlessly.

He turned on her suddenly.

"Where is your pride, Allen?" he demanded. "After all that has taken place and all your Aunt Constance and your friends have said, would you have me take my wife to the opera at Mr. Stafford's expense?" "But you don't know that he sent them," she demurred.

"Now, look here, Allen! Answer me one straight question. Don't you honestly, deep down in your heart, believe that Mr. Stafford sent those tickets?"

Allen did not reply. She gazed out of the window with a great show of indifference and even hummed a little air from the opera in question, but her face was quite pink. Page waited a moment, but still she said nothing.

"Well, it doesn't matter whether you answer me or not," he observed in his legal voice. "I'm very sorry I cannot afford to give you all the pleasure you crave, but I haven't sunk so low as to accept charity from my former suitor."

With that, Page departed in haste and without kissing her "Good-by."

Now the difficulty about Page and Bob Stafford was of long standing and as much as it should, it all dated back to the days when Allen was Allen Alsworth and had ended her highly successful debutante year by marrying Page Clinton instead of Bob Stafford. To say that everybody in her set was surprised is putting it mildly. With few exceptions "the Set" heartily disapproved. Allen was a winsome, attractive little thing, a beauty, in fact.

When she had made her debut, the papers had been eager for pictures of her; and her comings and goings and various successes had never lacked heralds. Of course, from the very first there had been dozens of lovers—first titled ones, from abroad to add a pungent touch—but it had been a foregone conclusion that she would marry Bob Stafford.

Bob Stafford was young, handsome and a leader in "the Set"; he was a famous polo player and all-round athlete. Last but by no means least he was heir to millions. As for Page Clinton, well, very few people in New York knew that he even existed until the startling announcement of Allen's engagement to him. "A rising young lawyer," one notice said; and most of "the Set" judged from various circumstances connected with the affair that he had a long distance to rise before reaching the altitude that would warrant their noticing him. True, he had usually good looks. And of course, he belonged to a "distinguished Southern family," but what of it? Those facts would not take him far in New York without accessories.

Aunt Constance had been furious. Allen was an orphan and lived with her aunt who was duly chronicled in the society papers as Mrs. Davenport Duval. Aunt Constance had been self-instituted general-in-chief of Allen's social campaign and she felt about this marriage much as Napoleon must have felt about Waterloo.

In spite of all this, however, the wedding had been a brilliant affair. Aunt Constance had seen to that. There had been innumerable valuable gifts, all fully described in the papers. But those same papers had all failed to make any mention of the fact that the little bride was supremely happy, and if they had, none of "the Set" would have believed it for a moment. For three blissful months everything had been happiness, sunshine and love. Then in the midst of it all came this unfortunate affair of the opera tickets.

After Page had stormed out on the morning that the tickets came, with out kissing her good-by, Allen was very miserable and cried for an hour. Then she got angry, and after she allowed her anger to rise, it became worse and worse. She simply refused to see the thing from Page's point of view. No, it was entirely too strained and forced. Page was just selfish, as most men usually are. He did not care particularly for Grand Opera himself, so it didn't matter how she felt about it. She did not know for sure that Bob had sent the tickets. But suppose he had? Was that a crime? No, she was going to that opera and she was going on those tickets. Page could do as he pleased.

Now if Page had only kissed her good-by, it would probably all have been different. But Page was young, too, and he was hurt; and he did not understand women then as well as he did at a later period.

The next thing Allen did after she had thoroughly saturated herself with bad temper, was to telephone Mary Ross and invite her most cordially to go to the opera with her that night.

"It is impossible for Page to go," she assured Mary. "and I have two tickets and I thought you would enjoy going with me."

Then I tried Burdock Blood Bitters and was surprised at the results.

I only took two bottles and the boils disappeared and I have never been troubled with them since."

Mary was married. Such pleasures were rare in her life. She had been a secondhand of Allen's, but reverses to the family fortune had thrown her outside the pale of "the Set" and Allen, a lost sight of her during the brilliant debutante year. Since her marriage, a severe habit outside the shining prospects she had had been glad to know her friend ship with Mary.

Later, with an unwelcome little touch of rheumatism, Allen called upon Page and requested him with excessive politeness to allow her to use his car for the night. He was never late for the opera, and Mary was going to the opera. It added fuel to the fire of her wrath when he refused her request.

Allen was married. Such pleasures were rare in her life. She had been a secondhand of Allen's, but reverses to the family fortune had thrown her outside the pale of "the Set" and Allen, a lost sight of her during the brilliant debutante year. Since her marriage, a severe habit outside the shining prospects she had had been glad to know her friend ship with Mary.

THE FAMILY NEXT DOOR

Hints for the Household

IT PAYS TO KEEP MONEY AT HOME

Money spent at home circulates in the home town. This is well known, but few people have any idea of how many hands a bill passes through in the course of an ordinary business day. With the object of tracing the adventures of currency, the mayor of Calgary recently tried out an interesting experiment. He passed a five dollar bill on a sheet of cardstock, which had a notice on it asking each person accepting the bill to endorse on the card his particular business. That bill passed through sixty-one different hands in ten days, finally being returned to the mayor.

In starting on its journey he handed over the bill to a Calgary haberdasher in part payment for a new hat. The second endorsement showed that it had been paid to another store, and on the same day it was endorsed by a firm of florists who paid it to an automobile company, and so it went on from one business house to another, until, as stated, at the end of ten days the identical bill with its accompanying card, was received by the mayor, who had started it out ten days earlier.

The following summary gives the different hands the bill passed through and shows that practically every class of business benefits by money paid out during the course of ordinary transactions:

Dry Goods and Clothing	13
Hardware	3
Florists	1
Insurance	1
Cigar Stores	3
Ironworks	1
Cafe	1
Shoe Stores	2
Butcher	1
Grocers	1
Electrical	1
Autos and Garages	5
Banks	1
Telegraphs	1
Carriage Company	1
Unclassified	16
Druggists	4
Printers	3

The adventures of this bill should be a potent argument to put before mail order shoppers in proving to them that by spending money at home there is an excellent chance of the cash coming back to the original spender. Against this money sent, perhaps hundreds of miles away is a total loss so far as other local business men deriving any benefit from it.

The Editor,
Wetaskiwin Times.

Dear Sir—
At the U.F.A. Convention recently held in Wetaskiwin a committee of three was appointed to supply the "Times" with a monthly letter or series of notes on U.F.A. matters. I hope you will be able to find space in your valuable paper for the same. Whether or not your readers agree with what is contributed they are at least likely to find it interesting. The present contribution is divided into three main paragraphs, and the pen-name "Trinity" is used.

Terrible Backaches For Years Could Not Sleep at Night

Mrs. Fred Forth, Wetaskiwin, Alta., writes:—"I wish to thank you for your medicine, Doan's Kidney Pills."
For several years I had terrible backaches that were so bad I could not sleep at night. I tried all kinds of medicine without getting any relief. One day a friend asked me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and after using one box I felt much better; after using two boxes I was completely relieved and could enjoy a full night's sleep.

Decorated Candles

Have you seen the latest in candles? These are appropriate for a prize at a bridge party or a present when one does not want to spend too much.

A stick of colored sealing wax and a pair of plain candles of contrasting color are all that are needed. Cover the wick of candle with melted sealing wax and put drops of same on candle to simulate melted wax. For instance, gray candles with blue or red sealing wax or brown candles with bronze sealing wax.

Pineapple Shortcake

1 cup of flour sifted with
1 teaspoonful of baking powder
1 teaspoonful of salt. Cut in
1 1/2 tablespoonfuls of soft lard. Add
2-3 cup sweet milk.

Put in pan in two layers with melted butter between layers. Bake in hot oven 20 minutes. Separate layers and put sweetened grated pineapple between and on top. Pour over sweetened juice thickened with 1 tablespoonful of cornstarch and serve with whipped cream.

Baked Ham

Let half ham boil gently until nearly done. Let cool in water. Remove outer skin and fat. Rub with brown sugar.

Stick cloves in fat surface. Cover with breadcrumbs and bake about two hours.

Can't Be Done

From a reader in Victoria, British Columbia, I received a query not long ago which, I am sure, will interest many other housekeepers. She asked me to tell her how jelly might be made from loganberries, raspberries, and other fruits without the use of sugar.

Of course, every woman who makes her own jams and jellies is interested in saving sugar in the various processes. To all of them I can say—it is not possible to make jelly from any fruit entirely without the use of sugar. Gelatine may be flavored with the fruit juice and will, if it is to be used soon, perhaps, serve the purpose. But, a mixture of this sort cannot be kept for any length of time.

However, the amount of sugar used can be lessened considerably if the juice is evaporated from the fruit by first cooking it without water. Really fine results may be secured by this method."

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

1. A pleated skirt may be laundered quite easily if the pleats are basted in around the hem before washing and allowed to remain fastened until ironed?

2. Sliced cold meats will keep for days if wrapped in oiled paper and placed in the refrigerator?

3. Oil Paintings must never be cleaned with water! A specially prepared oil must be used to keep them from cracking and chipping?

4. It is best to iron silk with an almost cool iron before it is entirely dry?—(Copyright)

LIBERAL LEADER HAD AUTO STOLEN AT GLEICHEN

GLEICHEN, Alta., Nov. 25.—Stolen from a local garage, thieves who previously had obtained $1,000 worth of merchandise in the robbery of a local store, escaped in an automobile owned by W. R. Howson, Liberal leader. The car was found abandoned in a ditch near Strathmore today, but there was no trace of the thieves.

The two McLeans, walked calmly to the gallows at Fort Saskatchewan jail. The son, William, died first, at 3:47 a.m., and 22 minutes later his father followed him to the scaffold.

The Affair of the Tickets

The famous finger scored a triumph. Altogether, it was an inspiring occasion and Mary was ecstatic. And by all the rules of the game Aileen should have been thoroughly pleased with herself. She looked lovely and she knew it. Her gown, a relic of her troupe, was a shimmering, satiny thing, all green and blue and silver, like the sea in the early morning. And in a box not far from her, sat Bob Stafford, his melancholy gaze fixed on her instead of the stage. All of which was quite enough to cause her to register a fair-sized thrill. But it did nothing of the kind. Instead of the marvelous prima donna she could hear nothing but Page's voice, tender and adoring as it usually was, then curt and lawyer-like as it had been today. Look where she would she could see his clear-cut, young face, his black-lashed gray eyes and his dark hair with the refractory way it had of curling.

The lovers on the stage were singing their immortal duet; the passion and poignant sweetness of it filled Aileen's soul and drowned out the last bit of pride, anger, hurt vanity and all the ugly interlopers she had been harboring since noon. Her eyes filled with tears and she longed for nothing in the world so much as the touch of Pages hand. She wondered if he had gone home yet. Would the thing never end? Did the creatures intend to stand there and screech the remainder of the night? Had Bob Stafford lost all the sense he ever had? She was sorry she had taken his old opera-tickets. She did not like operas anyhow. She could not imagine for the life of her why she had been so eager to come. She was quite sure now that there was nothing on earth that she really did want to do but to get home and tell Page what a little beast she had been and how sorry she was—if he would only forgive her this time. Then she remembered with a sinking heart that she had invited Mary to spend the night with her. And Mary was enjoying herself so thoroughly that she scarcely noticed Aileen's restlessness or how she hustled home after the opera was over.

Aileen could see from a distance that the apartment windows were brightly lighted. Evidently Page was there ahead of them. Her heart began to beat suffocatingly and her hands grew cold and shaky. She felt like a naughty, little girl detected unexpectedly in her naughtiness. Everything seemed to conspire to delay her, even the elevator ascended with provoking deliberation. But finally, after breathless suspense, she reached the apartment and flung open the door.

A glance showed that the living-room was empty; so they hurried to the dining-room, and there stood Page in the middle of the floor by the table. He held something like a letter in his hand and his face wore a peculiar expression. He did not speak but just looked at Aileen. She stood still in the doorway with Mary peeping over her shoulder; she glanced first at Page and then around the room.

"Oh, Page!" she gasped in dismay. The room was a wreck. All her silver, her beautiful wedding silver was gone to the last piece. Her hands went up involuntarily to her throat as she touched her pearls. Her jewels! She ran through the room, across the hall to her bedroom beyond. Page followed her more slowly and Mary trailed behind. The confusion here was even worse. The drawers to her chiffonier and dressing table had been pulled open and the contents scattered over the bed and floor.

"Burglars!" she whispered. Page laughed, an odd, embarrassed laugh.

"They kindly left a note which explains several things," he said, handing her the slip of paper he had been holding.

She took it curiously and read, written in clear writing of some character:

"We are indebted to the society editors for the account of your valuable wedding gifts. You are indebted to us for the opera-tickets. We hope you found the evening an enjoyable one—and profitable, as we did."

That was all. There was no name. Aileen read it again then slowly let it drift to the floor.

"Page!" she cried unexpectantly. His eyes met hers with their old expression of adoring tenderness and his arms were outstretched. Aileen went into them and hid her face against his coat before she burst into tears.

They forgot all about Mary.

Winners at the Royal Fair

Alberta exhibitors in all classes at the Royal Fair, Toronto, this year, have piled up victories until the province has come within an ace of equalling last year's great record. The imposing total for this year is 225 prizes with a few more still to be added to the list. Last year's total was 252 prizes. Last year there were 25 championships in all with four special prizes. This year the championships number 24 with the same number of special prizes. The grand championships include two in field crops, one in dairy cattle, one in beef cattle and two in poultry.

The beef classes furnish the majority of prizes, totalling 64, including 4 championships, and 17 first prizes, 22nd championship, nine other championships, and 17 first prizes. The grand championship went to Frank Collicott of Crossfield on a Hereford junior female. Mr. Collicott went east this year with only eight head, but was able to walk off with a grand championship, two junior championships, four reserve championships, nine firsts and six other prizes.

The Prince of Wales joined the ranks of Alberta champions by taking a reserve championship on his senior Shorthorn bull "Princeton MacDuff."

The University of Alberta, for ten years one of the leaders in beef cattle winnings at the Royal, this year got a reserve championship on group of three steers, a reserve on Angus steer, and a reserve on a senior Shorthorn calf, with 11 other prizes. The Macintyre Ranch near Lethbridge, J.

L. Walters of Clive and E. J. Boake of Aene, were other winners in the beef classes.

In dairy cattle Alberta has been writing real history at the Royal. Last year the two exhibitors in Holsteins, the C.P.R. Strathmore farm and Hays & Co. of Calgary, took a total of 57 prizes. This year they have almost equalled that record. The outstanding win was the female grand championship on the C.P.R.'s eight-year-old cow "Wayne Sylvia." The Strathmore farm also took 19 other prizes while Hays & Co. had a total of 20 prizes, including the trophy for the best junior herd, J. J. Richards of Red Deer, won three prizes in Ayrshires. In dual purpose Shorthorns, the Alberta Department of Agriculture, for the second year in succession won junior and reserve grand championships on its yearling bull "Dominator" and similar championships were also taken by Wm. Hudson of Kathryn, of dual purpose yearling female. The two-year-old of Czar, led the parade of Alberta turkey tom owned by Mrs. Houchner, champion not only by taking the grand championship in the turkey show, but also by taking the grand championship of the whole poultry show with its 6,000 entries. In addition there were 10 other prizes in turkeys, with only 12 entries in all. In other poultry classes 25 prizes were taken.

In sheep classes, the C.P.R. Tilley farm took most of the prizes in the Suffolk and Hampshire breeds, with four championships. In horses the province took 17 prizes, with one special prize. In grains and grasses the total was 36 prizes with two grand championships and 10 firsts. The total number of first prizes taken was 52 compared with 53 last Herman Grapentine returned to his home last week from the Wetaskiwin Community hospital. Herman says "he is pretty sore yet, but the bull will be a lot more sore when Herman gets around again."

Thieves broke into the U.F.A. store last week and stole goods valued at $50.00. Police are investigating.

Mr. John Ricketts came home on Thursday from the Edmonton hospital where he was operated on about two months ago. Rev. H. E. Parker drove Mr. Ricketts home in his car.

A basket social was held at West Lethbridge schoolhouse on Friday night, Dec. 1st. There was a good attendance and bidding went high on the baskets. Mr. Herb Schmidt was the auctioneer. Mrs. Fred Easterbrook and Rev. H. E. Parker rendered selections on the piano. Mrs. R. Hoskins played violin selections, accompanied by Jimmy Hoskins on the banjo. Dancing followed. Mr. E. G. Barnes gave a very interesting talk on music. The proceeds were for a new piano which was installed in the school last week.

We are certainly pleased to see Miss Mary Stuchess up and around again after an attack of pleurisy.

A card party was held at the home of Mrs. E. W. Mullen last Thursday evening, Nov. 30th, in aid of St. Norberts Altar Society. Mr. Phil Friel won the prize for the hidden score, while Mr. Jim Mullen, Jr., won the consolation prize. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Dancing followed.

We are sorry to hear Mr. A. P. Mitchell, M.L.A., is confined to his home with flu. We hope to see his cheery smile soon.

Mr. John Barth underwent an operation on his nose last week. In an Edmonton hospital last week.

Mr. Wolfe and John Barth returned home about 10 days ago with two nice bucks.

Miss Margaret Woods is visiting at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Moore, while Gilbert is away on a hunting trip.

Would the party or parties who visited Mrs. Walter Wolfe's place during Mrs. Wolfe's absence last Thursday night and swiped turkeys without permission, please call back and get their visiting cards which were left at Mrs. Wolfe's place.

Last Monday night the Millet Young People's Club met in the United church at 8 p.m. Miss J. Inglis as chairman. After the business session, a Mock Marriage was the event of the evening. Those taking part were: Bride, Rev. H. E. Parker; Groom, Allice Champagne; Bridesmaid, Stanton Elder; Best Man, Ruth Easterbrook; Minister, Adrian Kent; Organist, Emma Schultz; Flower Girl, Gordon Higginson and Thomas Wolfe; Father of Bride, Miss J. Inglis; Brother of Bride, Allice Lathie. After the ceremony was performed, a dainty lunch was provided by the social committee. Games followed.

We hear that Mr. Dan Merner of Pigeon Lake, has taken a contract to build a chicken house in the Porto Bello district for Mr. Burger. He hopes to have it completed by Christmas.

The Boy Scouts wish to advise their friends that the toy repair shop is open. Any broken toys or discarded clothing will be accepted. Don't delay. Christmas is close, and we need anything you can give to help bring cheer to those less fortunate than you.—E. Moore, Scoutmaster.

We are glad to hear Dan Inglis is steadily improving. He is now able to move his arm, and we are looking forward to seeing Dan out snowballing with the kids.

A large congregation attended the Communion service at the United Church, Sunday evening, Dec. 3rd. Rev. H. E. Parker spoke on "Christ's Influence on Mankind." Twelve new members were accepted into the church. The new members were: The Misses Lily Thompson, Alva Wolfe, Allice Lathie, Irene Kant, Margaret Wood, and Messrs. Aubrey Thompson, Elwood Thompson, Gordon Higginson, Tom Wolfe, Percy Aikens, Harold Wood and Wallace Wood.

Monday night a large crowd of young people attended the jamboree at Leduc. There were four Young People's Clubs attending, Leduc, Conjur Lake, Clearwater and Millet.

Jack Torrence, president of Conjur Lake club, was appointed to the chair. The meeting opened with singing, then Dr. Thompson gave a talk on "What the Church can do for Young People," followed by a short talk by Rev. Parker on "What the Young People can do for the Church." Then there was the various games and mix-ups. A fine lunch was served.

Following the practice Thursday evening the members of the string band enjoyed a skate on the mill pond. They then returned to the home of Mrs. C. Eliason, where a nice lunch was served.

The outside work of the new church was completed Monday. It is hoped that the inside will be finished shortly before Christmas. Mr. Charlie Swanson has kindly taken hot dinners down to all the men working on the church.

ed, and the party broke up at 11:30 with "Auld Lang Syne."

What might have proved a fatal accident occurred on the highway between Kavanagh and Leduc Monday night. The Young People's Club of Millet, were enroute to Leduc and one car owned by Herman Grapentine of Millet, had a collision with Valen's truck. Nobody was hurt, but the sedan was demolished. Police are investigating.

Frank Hamilton took his Springer Spaniel dog "Amazon Lady" down to Calgary Dog Show last Friday and Saturday, and won 1st in novice, 1st in any variety sporting, and 2nd in no limit, being beaten for 1st place by the Spriger bitch Beismoss Betty, which went best dog in the show. The entry also brought home the bacon, as she won a big ham for a special prize.

KNOB HILL

Mr. C. Stone returned from Edmonton on Wednesday.

Miss Doris Stone left for Edmonton on Friday, where she will spend the winter months with her sister, Mrs. L. Graebin.

Tuesday evening Mrs. C. Stone and Mrs. C. Anderson entertained fourteen guests at a delightful farewell party given in honor of Miss Doris Stone. During the evening, Mr. J. Bergstrom sang some very pleasing selections, the remainder of the time being spent in games. A very dainty lunch was then served by the hostesses.

Following the practice Thursday evening the members of the string band enjoyed a skate on the mill pond. They then returned to the home of Mrs. C. Eliason, where a nice lunch was served.

The outside work of the new church was completed Monday. It is hoped that the inside will be finished shortly before Christmas. Mr. Charlie Swanson has kindly taken hot dinners down to all the men working on the church.

MULHURST

The Co-operative fishermen of Pigeon Lake, held a meeting November 27th in the Fish hall. Mr. Hubert Johnson was successful in securing the tender for packing fish, etc.

Jud Mulligan had the misfortune to lodge a particle of steel in his eye, necessitating a trip to Wetaskiwin to have it removed.

Mrs. Rodgers, who has been ill with pneumonia, is now improving and well on the way to recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Armstrong and family have moved into their new house.

The unseasonable weather prevailing last month was responsible for the complete breaking up of the ice. Old Timers say this has not occurred for some time. During the break-up, some concern was evinced by the residents when it was thought a boat containing at least three passengers was adrift out in the open water. It was quite generally confirmed that whoever or whatever was in the boat was certainly moving.

However, a pair of binoculars were finally brought forth and the object of interest proved to be a large spruce tree with limbs still intact, and the movement apparently that of the tree turning over and over in the rough water. It is now frozen over again, and skating has been resumed.

The Silver Bay Bridge Club held a re-organization meeting in the restaurant the beginning of the month and officers were elected as follows: Chairman, Mr. M. Brown; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. T. R. Pauls; Committee, Miss Ina Standerfer, Miss Betty Dowler and Mr. Williams. High scores for the month were Art Clark and Ina Standerfer. A general meeting held after the last game, it was decided to put on a dance in the near future and also to put on a short sketch or play in conjunction with the school concert.

The village has been fortunate in securing membership in the University Extension Library. Forty books will arrive each month of fiction and non-fiction, and this number has been augmented by private donations. A ten cent fee gives you the privilege of two books, which may be kept a week. Boys and girls may also take advantage of the library. There are a number of good fiction books by popular boys' and girls' authors, and in this month's collection, "The Story of Mankind," by Van Loon, will be found interesting and educational.

la Standerfer is librarian. To the question of "What do you think of the weather?" addressed to several of the local residents, the following are some of the replies received:

Roy Armstrong: "The weather man's out and the kids are looking after things."

Miss Compton: "You're asking me?"

Charlie Knight: "Werse!"

FALUN

The Falun W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Isaacson on Saturday last, with a large number of visitors and many were present. After the regular business meeting, Mrs. E. Kaiser gave a very interesting paper on Canadian Industries.

The election of officers for 1934 then took place, which resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. H. Ness.
Vice-President—Mrs. R. Cronin.
Secretary-Treasurer—Mrs. T. S. Steedman.

Directors—Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Isaacson.

Buyer—Mrs. Isaacson.
Sick Committee—Mrs. Kadlec, Mrs. Cronin, Mrs. Chapman.

Social Convener—Mrs. Isaacson.

The meeting adjourned to a very delicious luncheon served by Mrs. Isaacson, Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Chapman. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. R. Cronin on Jan. 6th.

Several Falun people attended the pie social and dance in Lone Ridge hall on Friday last. They report an enjoyable time.

The Vasa Lodge held their regular monthly meeting on Saturday evening last.

Her Little Girl Had a Bad Cold

Mrs. Thomas Lees, Langdowne Station, N.S., writes: "My little girl had such a bad cold she would cough so hard at night she could hardly get her breath. I tried everything I thought would improve her, but to no avail, until I saw where Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for colds and coughs. After giving her two bottles she was greatly improved. I am never without 'Dr. Wood's' in the house in cases of emergency." Price, 35c a bottle; large family size, 65c, at all drug and general stores; put up only by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CONJURING LAKE

Mr. Parker was unable to attend the evening rally of the Conjur Lake Young People, but the Citizenship committee, who had charge of the program, carried their share of the burden successfully.

Famous sayings of famous men was the roll call for the evening.

It was quite evident that history does not include many of the names and sayings of the answers to the roll call, but the young people of this district are certainly not without that great asset, a give and take sense of humor.

Mr. W. Dalgarno was chairman of the Citizenship committee, assisted by Mr. T. Bell and Miss M. Blondheim.

"Scotty" Curry, unable to answer the roll call in the approved manner, responded very efficiently with a humorous song.

The committee's entertainment for the evening was a mock trial. The case before the judge, Miss L. Hamilton, was a breach of promise action. The large gathering greatly enjoyed themselves and more names were added to the roll call.

At this meeting the members were notified that a rally of Young People was being held in Leduc on Monday, Dec. 4th, when Millet, Clearwater and Conjur Lake will be the guests of the Leduc club. Arrangements were made for the conveyance of a large number of the Wizards to attend the rally.

The names of all members on the roll call were placed in an envelope and each member on drawing a name from the envelope, will bring a small present, to be given at the next regular meeting, Tuesday, Dec. 12th. The evening finished in the usual Wizard way, everyone all smiles and laughter.

HILLSIDE JUNIOR U.F.A.
The regular monthly meeting of the Hillside Wide Awake Junior U.F.A.

was held at the schoolhouse Nov. 28. The roll was answered by each member giving a line of poetry and the name of the poet.

A report of the winter program was given by Wallace Marr.

The secretary was instructed to order the book "The Intelligent Man's Guide Through World Chaos," by G. D. H. Cole, as the local has decided to study this book during 1934. It was decided to hold a Presidential campaign again at the annual meeting. The candidates are Messrs. Wm. Runte, Wallace Marr and Miss K. Marr.

The Hillside Junior Debating Team Messrs. Wm. Runte, J. Hoskins and W. Marr will meet the U.F.A. team at the schoolhouse on Dec. 8th, on the subject, "Resolved that the policy of the C.C.P. is not aggressive enough."

The juniors are also challenging the Westmont Calf Club to a debate to be held later on.

Miss K. Marr was asked to audit the Junior books. Wm. Runte and C. Robinson were chosen as editors "Junior Times."

The annual meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. L. Gray on Dec. 15th.

The program committee for the first six months of 1934, W. Runte, W. Marr, W. Charley, J. Hoskins and Miss K. Marr were appointed to choose suitable plays to be staged by the juniors during February, 1934. Wm. Runte gave a short report on the U.F.A. Provincial Convention which was held in Wetaskiwin.

The meeting adjourned, and an enormous amount of lunch was put away by the gang.

Catarrhal Deafness May Be Overcome

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmit (double strength), and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

LIBRARY NOTES

Selected books from the Wetaskiwin library include "I Can Wait" by the author of Miss Tiverton Goes Out. A new made widow sets out to live her own life by collecting oddments of humanity about her in an abandoned farm house, the story of a most extraordinary woman, done with brilliance of style and characterization.

"The Whoop-Up Trail" by H. M. Bower. Here we are back with Chip Bennett—"Chip of the Flying U"—and with old man Whitmore's "Hap Family" in the days when Chip was a youngster of eighteen coming with his string of horses up the long Whoop-Up Trail in search of his brother Wade.

"Miss Bishop" by Bess Streeter Aldrich. This new story is worthy of the author of that outstanding novel "A Lantern in Her Hand." The heroine has courage and a vivid capacity for enjoying life.

"The Soft Spot" by A. S. M. Hutchinson. Stephen Wain's soft spot did not show on the surface, few people even suspected its existence, but it molded his entire life and affected the lives of everyone near him. Stephen's soft spot led him to strange places, deep into the jungles of Peru, far among the islands of the Malay archipelago, high among the moguls of the world of business. This is a book that will leave you thoughtful, yet eager to discuss it with some other reader.

Books are pleasant companions for the long winter evenings, and we have a good selection at the public library.

TRAPPER SAYS BUCK CREEK MAN DIED IN HIS HOME

Winfield, Alta., Dec. 4.—Carl Anderson, middle-aged storekeeper of the Buck Creek district, met death in his dwelling near his store, according to Carl Elder, trapper, who returned here Saturday, after a two weeks' stay in the Buck Creek district.

The bones of Anderson, who apparently was burned to death with the destruction of his home, were found lying among the debris from the fire, close to what had once been a bed. The bones were taken to the University of Alberta by R.C.M.P. investigators.

According to Elder, the police were sent for and when Constable La Point of the R.C.M.P. arrived, he arrested Frank Conadsen, 55, on a charge of shooting a female deer. The man's son, Edward Conadsen, 22, was later arrested at Edson.

Police are continuing their probe in the possibility that Anderson was murdered and then his dwelling set on fire to destroy the evidence.

Elder says that he was in the Anderson store on Armistice Day and that for two hours he discussed the Buck Creek district with Anderson who has been a resident there for many years. After Elder purchased some supplies Anderson made change for a $5 bill from a tin can which, according to Elder, held considerable silver.

On Nov. 15, the morning of the fire, Elder was again in the district and he was one of the first men to visit the scene of the fire.

Edward Conadsen was one of the party of men who went for the police at Edson when the disastrous fire was discovered. Then, it is believed, he went into the Drayton Valley, where he stayed at the post office overnight, and went out with the postmaster the next morning, to Edson, where he was arrested by Constable Matheson of the R.C.M.P. on Nov. 25.

The store building is about 30 yards from the small house where Anderson met death, and the store was not damaged in the fire. All of the stock of the store is intact and has been moved to a nearby garage.

CHRISTMAS EXAMINATIONS

Again these necessary evils are upon us—evils because they are such a worry to both pupils and teacher, and anything that is bad is evil; necessary because we have not yet found anything better to take their place. Beginning with Dec. 11th and continuing uninterruptedly until Dec. 22nd, the students will write tests of two and one half hours duration on thirty-four units, and all teachers will be reading test papers late into the night, every night in order to get the results published early in January.

These tests can be made a most valuable part of the work of the year for both pupil and teacher if properly conducted. The writing of a well organized examination paper of the essay type is, with a very few exceptions, a fair and reliable indication of the pupil's degree of mastery of that particular subject, and the results give him a fair estimation of his rank in the respective classes.

From a study of these results a pupil can determine his weak and his strong points, and can wisely reorganize his efforts for the balance of the year, and can place the emphasis of his endeavors where it is most needed. Then too, a thorough discussion of the test paper, after it has been evaluated and returned by the teacher, serves as a most valuable review of the essentials of the course, and is perhaps the most valuable feature of any test.

Again, by a careful study of the results of an extended test the teacher can discover whether or not sufficient and proper emphasis has been given by the teacher to the respective essentials of the course in question, in so far as any particular group of students is concerned. Groups of students do vary from year to year in their ability and in their interest, and their various aptitudes for the mastery of certain phases of the various courses, and a study of the results of any one group discloses whether or not a wise emphasis has been given by the teacher to the various points of difficulty. Inexperienced teachers sometimes fail to discern this point in the study of the results.

These tests will be set, the examinations will be conducted, and the papers marked in strict accordance with the standards set by the Department of Education for the June finals.

HERE'S THAT QUICK WAY TO STOP A COLD

Take 2 Aspirin Tablets. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

Almost Instant Relief in This Way

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICK-EST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get Aspirin Tablets. Aspirin is the trademark of The Bayer Company, Limited, and the name Bayer in the form of a cross, is on each tablet. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Aspirin Tablets dissolve so completely they leave no irritating particles. Get a box of 12 tablets or a bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

A BETTER TONE IN BUSINESS

Bank's Assets Increase by $6,700,000

MR. FRANK A. ROLPH,
President,
said in part:
Since I addressed you a year ago we have been passing through a period of uncertainty and adjustment, but during the past few months conditions have become more hopeful. The business of the Bank has been conducted on the usual sound principles of banking, as you will see by the Balance Sheet before you.

General Business.
In British Columbia lumbering, fishing and mining industries are all enjoying better conditions. The Port of Vancouver, which has been handling large quantities of grain and other commodities. The political situation there has been clarified, and the people, generally speaking, are in a happier and more hopeful frame of mind.

In the Prairie Provinces reports would indicate that the people are in a more hopeful frame of mind. The farmers are desiring of praise for the courage they show in carrying on under very difficult circumstances. Owing to the quotas obtained on behalf of Canada by our Prime Minister, the outlook for the producers of wheat, wheat, and other products is much more satisfactory to-day than it was a year ago.

In Ontario we find conditions much more encouraging. The mining industry is prosperous, manufacturing on the whole has improved considerably. Unemployment throughout the Province has been considerably reduced. The newsprint situation shows increased production but prices are altogether too low to render operations profitable.

In the Province of Quebec and in the Maritime Provinces conditions are also distinctly better. All reports indicate a decided improvement both in volume of production and in prices obtained. The improvement in the Canadian trade, both import and export, began in May last and continued during the succeeding months, the exports for the month of September being larger than for any month since May, 1931. Canada's trade balance for the first six months of this year compared with the same period last year shows an increase of over fifty million dollars. This is very encouraging.

We are looking with much interest to the development of the great experiment which our friends in the United States are making. We wish them well, but in the meantime a condition of uncertainty in regard to the value of currency causes disturbance in carrying on business. It is difficult to see how such a condition of exchange can be accomplished until the great question of reparations has been satisfactorily dealt with and the Gold Standard restored in some form or other.

Railway Matters.
The people are still awaiting the appointment of a Commission to handle the railway affairs of the nation. There is no more important or more pressing problem in this country than our railways. The Government-owned portion of which continues to be such a steady drain upon the resources of the people. It is to be hoped the appointment of a Commission will soon be completed, with an adequate personnel for this important task, and that a basis for greater co-operation and reduction of unnecessary and wasteful expenditure, which will be fair to both railway systems, will be found.

Balanced Budgets.
There is evidence that individuals, corporations, Governments and municipalities are beginning to realize that they must keep their expenditures within their income. In other words, balance their budgets. This is another hopeful indication, and much still remains to be done along these lines. It is becoming generally recognized that nations must be measured by the ability to pay and not by the capacity to spend.

We are passing through strange and troublous times. Let us keep up our courage and carry on our task from day to day and keep our heads clear and level. I am not prophesying anything as to the future, but conditions are certainly better than they were and there are many definite signs of improvement. Let us avoid strange paths which may lead us to disaster.

I would once more like to express my high appreciation to the entire staff of the Bank for their continued interest and faithful service and for the efficient manner in which they have carried on their work.

MR. A. E. PHIPPS,
General Manager,
said in part:
The profits are $1,244,035.70, just $1,300 less than the profits for the year ending October, 1932.

General Statement.
Notes of the Bank in circulation, $7,800,218, stand at practically the same figure as a year ago.

The deposits not bearing interest, $21,148,227.23, are nearly five millions in excess of last year. The deposits bearing interest, $33,300,122.47, are approximately the same—just $27,000 less than they were at the end of 1932.

The total liabilities to the public of $118,733,282.52 are $6,650,000 more than in 1932, the increase being largely in demand deposits, which are unusually high. Cash Assets $22,360,607.

Current coin, Dominion Government notes and United States and other foreign currencies total $8,379,242.44 a year ago.

EDITOR'S CRITIQUE BRINGS BLACK EYES

ST. PAUL, Nov. 24. — Modern counterpart of the old saying "the pen is mightier than the sword" was demonstrated in police court here Wednesday when a sequel to a difference between the town newspaper editor and an irate reader was aired. A. Robin was fined $5 for assaulting G. LaRue who appeared in court with a pair of blackened optics.

Last week's issue of the St. Paul Journal contained what Mr. Robin contended was a scathing criticism of the way he operated the skating rink last winter. The following morning he called on the editor for an explanation. Words got so hot fists began to fly.

Magistrate Shortridge of Elk Point, who came to sit on the case in firing accused explained some of the privileges of the press.

WOOD ALCOHOL POISONING

Wood alcohol—chemically known as methyl alcohol in distinction to grain or ethyl alcohol—has for years been employed in the arts and industries, and has been responsible for many cases of fatal poisoning.

Prohibition of the legal manufacture of alcohol beverages has resulted in their illegal manufacture. And with poor materials and equipment have come the distillation of liquor not only poor but poisonous, because of its wood alcohol content. Fancy bottles with colorful labels are no guarantee of their contents, and it may be accepted as a settled fact that 99 per cent of all liquor on the market today is worthless. As a result cases of wood alcohol poisoning have multiplied enormously since the advent of prohibition.

Symptoms of

Wood Alcohol Poisoning

The earliest constant symptoms are weakness, dimness of vision and nausea. Accompanying these disturbances there may be pronounced thirst (for water), pains in the back, headache and shortness of breath. The face is deeply flushed, even purplish. There may also be dizziness, ringing in the ears, and in bad cases delirium.

The reason that methyl alcohol acts so differently from ethyl alcohol is a matter of oxidation. Ethyl alcohol is largely burned up in the system the same as are ordinary food-stuffs, only a small proportion being excreted by the eliminative organs (lungs, skin, bowels, kidneys). Methyl alcohol, on the contrary, is oxidized very slowly and imperfectly. Half of a given dose will eventually be eliminated through the lungs instead of being burned up as would be an equal amount of ethyl alcohol. Moreover, the elimination of wood alcohol is a very slow process, continuing sometimes for an entire week. As a result of this combination—imperfect oxidation and tardy elimination—the poison remains in the system a long time during which it produces its harmful effects.

It appears that the toxin has a special affinity for nervous tissue which would account for the prominence of nervous symptoms in cases of poisoning. The effects of the poison exhibit themselves very rapidly in some instances, so that the victim in the space of a few hours becomes blind and delirious.

Treatment of

Wood Alcohol Poisoning

Treatment is usually of little avail. A severe case of wood alcohol poisoning has a gloomy outlook. This does not mean, of course, that the prospect is necessarily hopeless. Prompt, proper and persistent attention will save a certain percentage.

But, as in so many other afflictions, an ounce of prevention is worth a ton of cure. And in this particular instance the preventive measure is self-evident. Don't drink!—(Copy right)

BUCKLEY'S Gives You Far More For Your Money

Buckley's gives many things as far as ordinary cough remedies, because it can be diluted with water without impairing its marvelous healing and soothing qualities, and because only a few doses are needed to put a little to one cough or cold out of business. Even one sip of Buckley's gives unmistakable relief.

That's why people say, "It acts like a flash!" "A single sip proves it!"

No drug store has more sickly coughs—but a scientific formula that treats the cough—busts and soothes. Play safe. Refuse substitutes. Buckley's is sold everywhere.

Hog Marketings

Marketing of hogs from Alberta for the present year up to November 16 shows a total of 732,724 sent to market, which is an increase over the marketing of last year. The percentage of those grading select, however, is somewhat smaller than last year being only 7.4 per cent as compared with 8.2 per cent last year, while the percentage of hogs was 31.7, and the percentage of butchers was 46.8, with percentages showing an increase over last year's.

ASKING RETURN PART OF TRUCK LICENSE FEES

EDMONTON, Nov. 24.—Return to municipalities of 50 per cent of the truck license fees collected therein, was requested in a resolution unanimously passed by the 25th annual convention of the Alberta Association of Municipalities in session at the Masonic temple on Thursday.

Those in support of the resolution claimed that heavy road maintenance expenses were caused to the municipalities by trucks and no revenue was derived by the municipalities from trucks nor from government grants to defray such expenses.

Harry W. Bright, of McLeod, was elected by acclamation to the vice-presidency.

Directors elected were Donald Sinclair, Vulcan, and Norman McLellan, Vermilion.

A. H. Tovell, chairman of the Hail Insurance Board, gave a brief talk on the activities of his organization, although he went into no details and said that as the figures he might give would be difficult to remember, there would be little use giving them. But they would be mailed in statement form to delegates.

Due to conditions, 1933 had seen the smallest volume of hail insurance written since the inception of the board in 1914.

But, as a compensating factor, the loss had been the lightest ever.

The board had been able to set rates comparable with those of their competitors and in addition had set aside a reserve.

Collections, as might be expected, were not any too good, but were showing signs of improvement.

A large part of the Thursday afternoon session was spent in discussing resolutions.

Still another resolution advocated that when any crown lands are sold, a clause be inserted in the agreement of sale that any taxes lawfully levied against such land must be paid annually as and when due, or the agreement shall be considered cancelled as from January 1 in the year following.

It was requested by resolution to petition the provincial government to so amend the Relief or Relief Acts whereby some measure of relief can be granted the municipalities of this province from the ever increasing burden of trying to finance these charges, which in a great many municipalities, has reached the point that it is impossible to do so.

Several other motions, dealing with hospitalization, care of indigent sick and other matters were dealt with.

$2,500 DAMAGES AWARDED FARMER

Judgment for $2,500 general damages and special damages for the amount of his doctors' bills and hospital expenses were awarded Henry Russell Clements of Alliance, against Edward Page Ranick, farmer, by Mr. Justice Boyle in supreme court.

Clements was riding a horse along the main highway near Alliance on the night of September 15, 1932, accompanied by a dog and driving before him a cow and a calf, when the procession was crashed into by a car driven by the defendant, with the result that Clements had two bones fractured in the lower part of one leg.

She Was a Nervous Wreck Had Bad Dizzy Spells

Mrs. Adick Brabant, Blizard Valley, Ont., writes:—"I was a nervous wreck, also had dizzy spells and shortness of breath. I was so nervous I could not stay alone, and would be awake most of the night. I was not a bit better after consulting a doctor and taking his medicine. One day a friend told me to use Milburn's U. & N. Pills which I did, and in a very short time they made a great difference in my health. I cannot speak too highly of them."
